Mark Kempton took over as Manager as players left following the dismal first season in the Premier Division. Mark tried manfully to put out competitive teams, but after achieving just one point from the first four games and fielding just ten men vs. Celtic, the decision was taken to withdraw the team from the league on 22nd October 1999. The Seventies had ended in relegation; the Eighties had ended in relegation and now the Nineties had ended in the team withdrawing.
